

THE BIG QUESTIONS

Northumbria Student Union,
NEWCASTLE – JAN 28th 2018

The Big Questions BBC1's topical ethical debate show is now looking for audience members for series eleven. We will be broadcasting from Northumbria University Student Union on the Sunday, 28th January 2018 and we would like to invite you to be part of the audience. This show will be filmed live from the venue.

The Big Questions is the BBC's flagship ethical and moral debate programme. It is hosted by the experienced television and radio presenter Nicky Campbell, and airs on Sunday mornings from 10am-11am and from locations all around the country. The show addresses tricky moral questions facing the nation today, consulting front row experts and a select studio audience. Beliefs, informed opinions and personal stories are all aired during three lively debates.

As an audience member, you may get the chance to contribute to the discussions yourself, although due to the number of people in the audience we can't guarantee this.

If you'd like a seat in our audience, please contact the casting team, making sure to leave a contact phone number.

You can reach the casting team on audiencetbq@mentorn.tv

We look forward to hearing from you.
